The storymaps are planned to be included as part of the Biennial Reports on State-Owned Heritage Property reporting for the 2020 Education Interim Committee.

The Review Board was quite pleased and impressed with Ms. Keen's work on the storymaps and felt the agencies will also find these storymaps useful. Construction of the storymaps will hopefully spur the legislators to engage more with the biennial reporting, a legislative mandate.

Ms. Juisto of the Montana Preservation Alliance (MPA) thanked the Review Board for their service. She also wondered how preservationists can bring their skills to the make preservation a driver for the post-Corona recovery. MPA has set up a Corona task force to this end. Ms. Juisto suggested contacting Senator Steve Daines about the allocation of funding toward preservation as an economic driver during this period as Senator Daines sits on several committees related to spending. Ms. Juisto also mentioned the recent passing of John Ellingson, a historian who dedicated much of his life toward documenting the history of Virginia City.

Ms. Walter complemented the interesting and well-prepared nominations.

State Agency Stewardship Reporting Discussion-9:00 a.m.

Observations:

Some agencies have improved their reporting through the years while others continue to fall short.

Montana State University and the Department of Administration reports are easy to follow.

Further guidance to the agencies could assist them in submitting improved reports. Such additional guidance would hopefully make them more aware of their responsibility to the properties under their control.

Because the agencies self-report on properties under their purview, a few side-step some of their responsibilities through omission.

Some definition interpretation between agencies also occurs. For example, “maintenance” seems to mean different things to different agencies.

Divide agency reports among Review Board members during the next, 2022, reporting cycle.

Initial Suggestions

Initial Review Board suggestions included following the previous reporting format used in 2018, which would entail updating the existing handout provided to the interim legislative committee and incorporating the new storymaps produced by Jolene Keen of SHPO. It was noted that the previous reporting handout was much more accessible than the earlier, larger, pamphlet-style reports; this accessibility was born-out as the interim legislative committee was much more engaged during the Review Board/SHPO presentation. The state map viewed in the 2018 report can be omitted, replaced by links to the storymaps.

Items to emphasize at the interim committee meeting:

The appointment of a single in-house individual at every agency to serve as the point-of-contact responsible for the reporting is essential. As preservation is not the mission of many of these agencies, such an appointment might bring better understanding of the intent of the reporting process. This individual should also take Section 106 training to better understand the consultation process. However, the Board acknowledges that such an appointment is complicated by turnover within the agencies year to year. Similarly, turnover within the legislature every two years also compounds moving the Review Board/SHPO recommendations forward.

Review Board and SHPO Actions:

Every agency should receive a tailored letter from the Review Board outlining the positives and shortcomings of their reporting. The letters should be followed up with a meeting.

A checklist that outlines each step in the process the agencies should follow in the preparation of their reporting might be beneficial. Establishing something akin to Programmatic Agreements, or similar documents, between SHPO and agencies might provide a progress toward improved consultation. Providing a template/model to every agency might provide greater consistency between the reports.

Do on-line consultation training modules exist that the agencies can view for their education? Can the legislative committee recommend such training modules be part of a yearly “certification” for the agencies for their reporting duties to the Review Board and SHPO, thus keeping the process fresh in their minds?

Summary of State Agency Reporting Discussion:

The Review Board will follow the format of the 2018 report, updating it with current information, including links to the new SHPO storymaps.

The report will contain what the Review Board and SHPO can do to foster better agency reporting. This includes the possibility of additional meeting with agencies, providing a revised format for the agency heritage reports to allow for more consistency, and pointing agencies to on-line training to better educate them regarding their responsibilities and the Section 106 process.

A Review Board focus group consisting of Marcella Walter, Riley Auge, Milo McLeod, and possibly, new Board member, Nick Kujawa agreed to work on, among other items, findings and recommendations for the report to the interim legislative committee, preparation of the final report to the interim legislative committee, and preparation of letters tailored to the specific agencies. Letters would be sent to the agencies prior to the September 2020 legislative interim committee meeting.

Public Comment-10:30 a.m.

A Zoom participant offered that the MT Army National Guard is an agency that falls short in their responsibility to their buildings, stating the buildings are technically owned by the Army Corp of Engineers, not the Guard.

What is the status of the Company Kitchens at Fort Harrison? [A draft MOA has been submitted to SHPO for their demolition.] A letter to the National Guard Bureau in Washington D.C. addressed to General Quinn (adj. General), retired General Duffy (active with Fort Museum), and local preservationist Hal Sterns might help.

Head Ranch was mentioned as another MT National Guard property that received money years ago and now sits.

The Montana Preservation Alliance (MPA) offered their assistance to the Review Board to collaborate on issues and strategies.

Adjourn-10:45 a.m. Ms. Terry moved and Dr. Auge seconded for adjournment of the meeting. The Review Board unanimously concurred.
